<< There are among us people who believe in dreams. As time goes by, some of them go crazy and others become legends. We often read the stories of people like them, stories about their lives. About the war they had every day with others and the war they had every day with themselves. About how they seeked their goal in life and about what they found there. About how much truth and how much lie there is in each one. And, most of all, about how much life there is in dream !>>

Ion Cepoi
